

J02 Greg Cleghorne photo

2000 Commander, Navy I Ohana Quality Conferer

Editor's Note:

More than 3,020 members of the Navy Ohana in Hawaii took advantage of the new on-line survey that ran on the Commander, Navy Region Hawaii website earlier this year. After reviewing reams of data during the two-day Ohana Conference held March 1-2 at the Pearl Harbor Naval Shipyard training facilities, approximately 150 delegates representing Navy commands on Oahu reviewed and prioritized more than 16,000 comments resulting from the survey. Delegates formed seven work groups and were assigned up to four functional areas dealing with quality of life, such as housing, security, to recom issues in These then be program month. While

Question #2

What is your age?

J02 Greg Cleghorne photo

Question #6

What is your status?

J02 Greg Cleghorne photo

Question #11

Do you plan on making the military a career?

(Top left) An Ohana Conference representative greets and registers delegates arriving to building two for the conference.
(Center) Ohana Conference Delegate Tara Jones raises her hand to cast her vote during the Conference meeting of Team Six. Their group discussed ways of improving military and civilian working conditions, off-duty education opportunities and base facility concerns. Brian Rosa helps taking the tally.
(Above) Group six delegate Tara Jones tallies votes on military and civilian working conditions, off-duty education and facilities. The delegates grappled issues on improving quality of life for all involved.

2000 Navy Region Hawaii Quality of Life Conference

Shipyard training facilities. 150 delegates representing 16,000 comments on Oahu reviewed issues in each area. These issues and recommendations will then be forwarded to commanding officers or program managers for action later this month. While some demographic information from the survey is provided in this week's issue of Hawaii Navy News, feedback on the status of all issues covered during Ohana Conference 2000 will be provided to the Navy community in the next several months through HNN and online editions of the paper.

J02 Greg Cleghorne photo

J02 Greg Cleghorne photo

J02 Greg Cleghorne photo

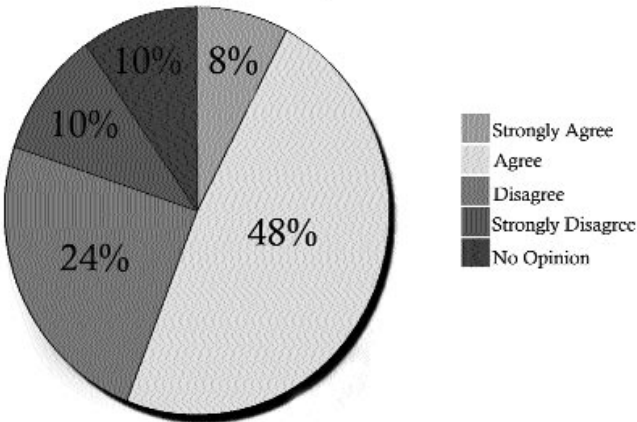

delegates arriving to cast her vote during of improving military and base facility con-

(Top right) Joan Wright takes notes about issues discussed by team five. Delegates discussed hundreds of issues submitted for quality of life improvements to the Ohana Conference. (Top) Skip Byron, Ohana Conference Facilitator, gives team five last minute instructions on issues the team was to vote on. Team five discussed Bachelor Enlisted Quarters, Messing and Medical issues. (Above) Byron keeps tallies of votes during the conference.

civilian working con-ces on improving qual-

Question #19

I am satisfied with my current quality of life.

Question #20

Living in Hawaii has been a positive experience.

Question #17

Where are you assigned?

